Welcome Back Newsletter

Welcome back from your summer break! This newsletter is designed to spur you on into the new school year and inspire you with new enthusiasm for the arts!

Education at 20-21 use our newsletters as a means of communicating with schools about our upcoming workshop and teacher training offers as well as exhibitions that suit classroom topics!

This newsletter is full of all things autumnal as we look at sculptures by Jane Bevan, and the story telling of Tracey Holland, Helen Snell and the fabulous 2000AD comic exhibition. Enjoy your read!

All Aboard for Literacy Links Central!

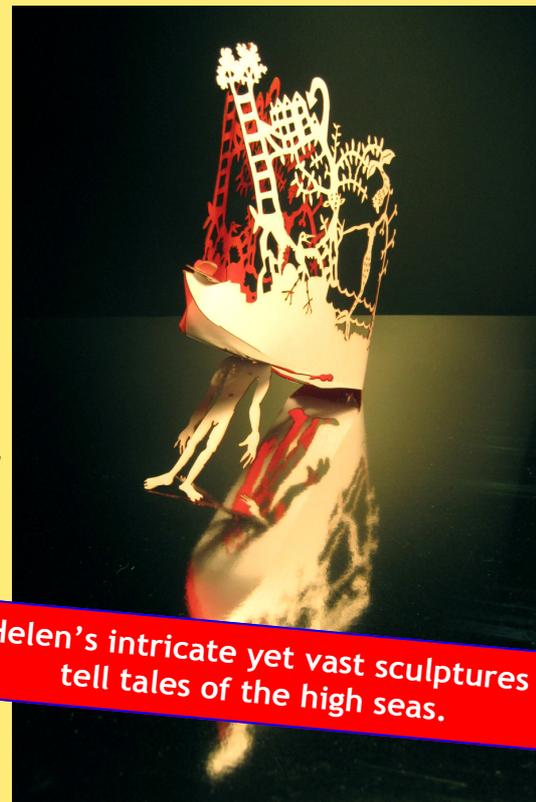

This Autumn term, 20-21's galleries will be jam packed with exhibitions that hold tremendous links for delivering creative sessions in literacy, visual literacy and language.

Helen Snell's "Burnt Out" (pictured right) will be Helen's biggest solo exhibition to date, displaying new works developed around her research and time spent at the National Maritime Museum. Helen's intricate yet vast sculptures tell tales of the high seas. This exhibition runs 5th Oct-18th Jan.

Tracey Holland's films "Atlas of Charged Space" (pictured above) explore links between science, mythology, religion and history and act as an excellent example of visual literacy, telling stories without words. This exhibition runs 19th Oct-11th Jan.

For details on what these exhibitions can offer you and your pupils, get in touch with our Education Officer whose details are at the end of this newsletter.

We are hosting our second Teacher Training session in October to ensure teachers feel confident in delivering creative classroom topics that embed literacy and language. Details of this session can be found in the Finding the Rs in Arts article. All Aboard for Literacy Links Central continues over the page.

Jane Bevan's "Walking with Nature" (pictured left) offers sculptures of work created after countryside walks and links directly with the work of Tracey Holland. Take a closer look at the details of nature while admiring the strength and versatility of the materials used. Jane's work easily incorporates studies of literacy as well as science and mini beasts. This exhibition runs 7th Sept-2nd Nov.

Our Judge Dredd inspired exhibition plays host to tributes to the cult classic comics as well as displaying some original artwork from publishers 2000AD. Two school workshops have been offered for pupils to work with comic artist Kev F. Their artwork will feature in the exhibition which runs 12th Oct-7th Dec.

Never before has 20-21 held so much potential for teachers and schools to take advantage of core and bespoke workshops, guided tours and loan pack hire. For information on any/all of these options, take a look at our up-to-date website and blog, details of which are at the end of this newsletter.

Arts Awards

We have staff fully trained to deliver all parts of Arts Awards, up to Gold level. Education at 20-21 are keen to connect with schools who are delivering or thinking about delivering Arts Awards.

20-21 are a registered Arts Award Supporter, meaning we can help you achieve any parts of Arts Award that you may be struggling with, by offering all of our Education Offer as opportunity for visits or hire.

Get in touch with our Education Officer, using for more information.

Teacher Training - Finding the Rs in Arts

Education at 20-21 are offering a outstanding FREE opportunity for teachers to come along and take part in a Teacher Training day called "Finding the Rs in Arts". The day will focus on up skilling teachers in using arts as a starting point for teaching literacy, visual literacy and language.

Finding the Rs in Arts will be delivered by our Education Officer whose background in Book Arts and Fine Art play a huge part in knowing this Teacher Training opportunity will be of high quality and will open teachers' eyes to some interesting concepts in the art of language.

Teachers will be given a tour of three of our major exhibitions of 2013, each of which have story telling and literacy at their core. The exhibitions will inspire activities that teachers can take back to the classroom.

Finding the Rs in Arts is Wednesday 16th Oct 3-4.30pm. Teachers will need to book and attend for the chance to win a FREE workshop!
